A previsão para esta semana indica o retorno das chuvas ao Sudeste, após uma semana de tempo mais firme em grande parte da região. A partir de terça-feira, uma nova frente fria avança, restabelecendo as condições de instabilidade. As chuvas devem ser bem distribuídas no estado de São Paulo e se estender para o Rio de Janeiro e o sul de Minas Gerais, com acumulados mais expressivos previstos entre quarta e quinta-feira. A partir de quinta, o padrão chuvoso se desloca para o norte da região, mantendo as precipitações em Minas Gerais e Espírito Santo até o domingo, enquanto o tempo volta a se firmar no interior e sul paulista.

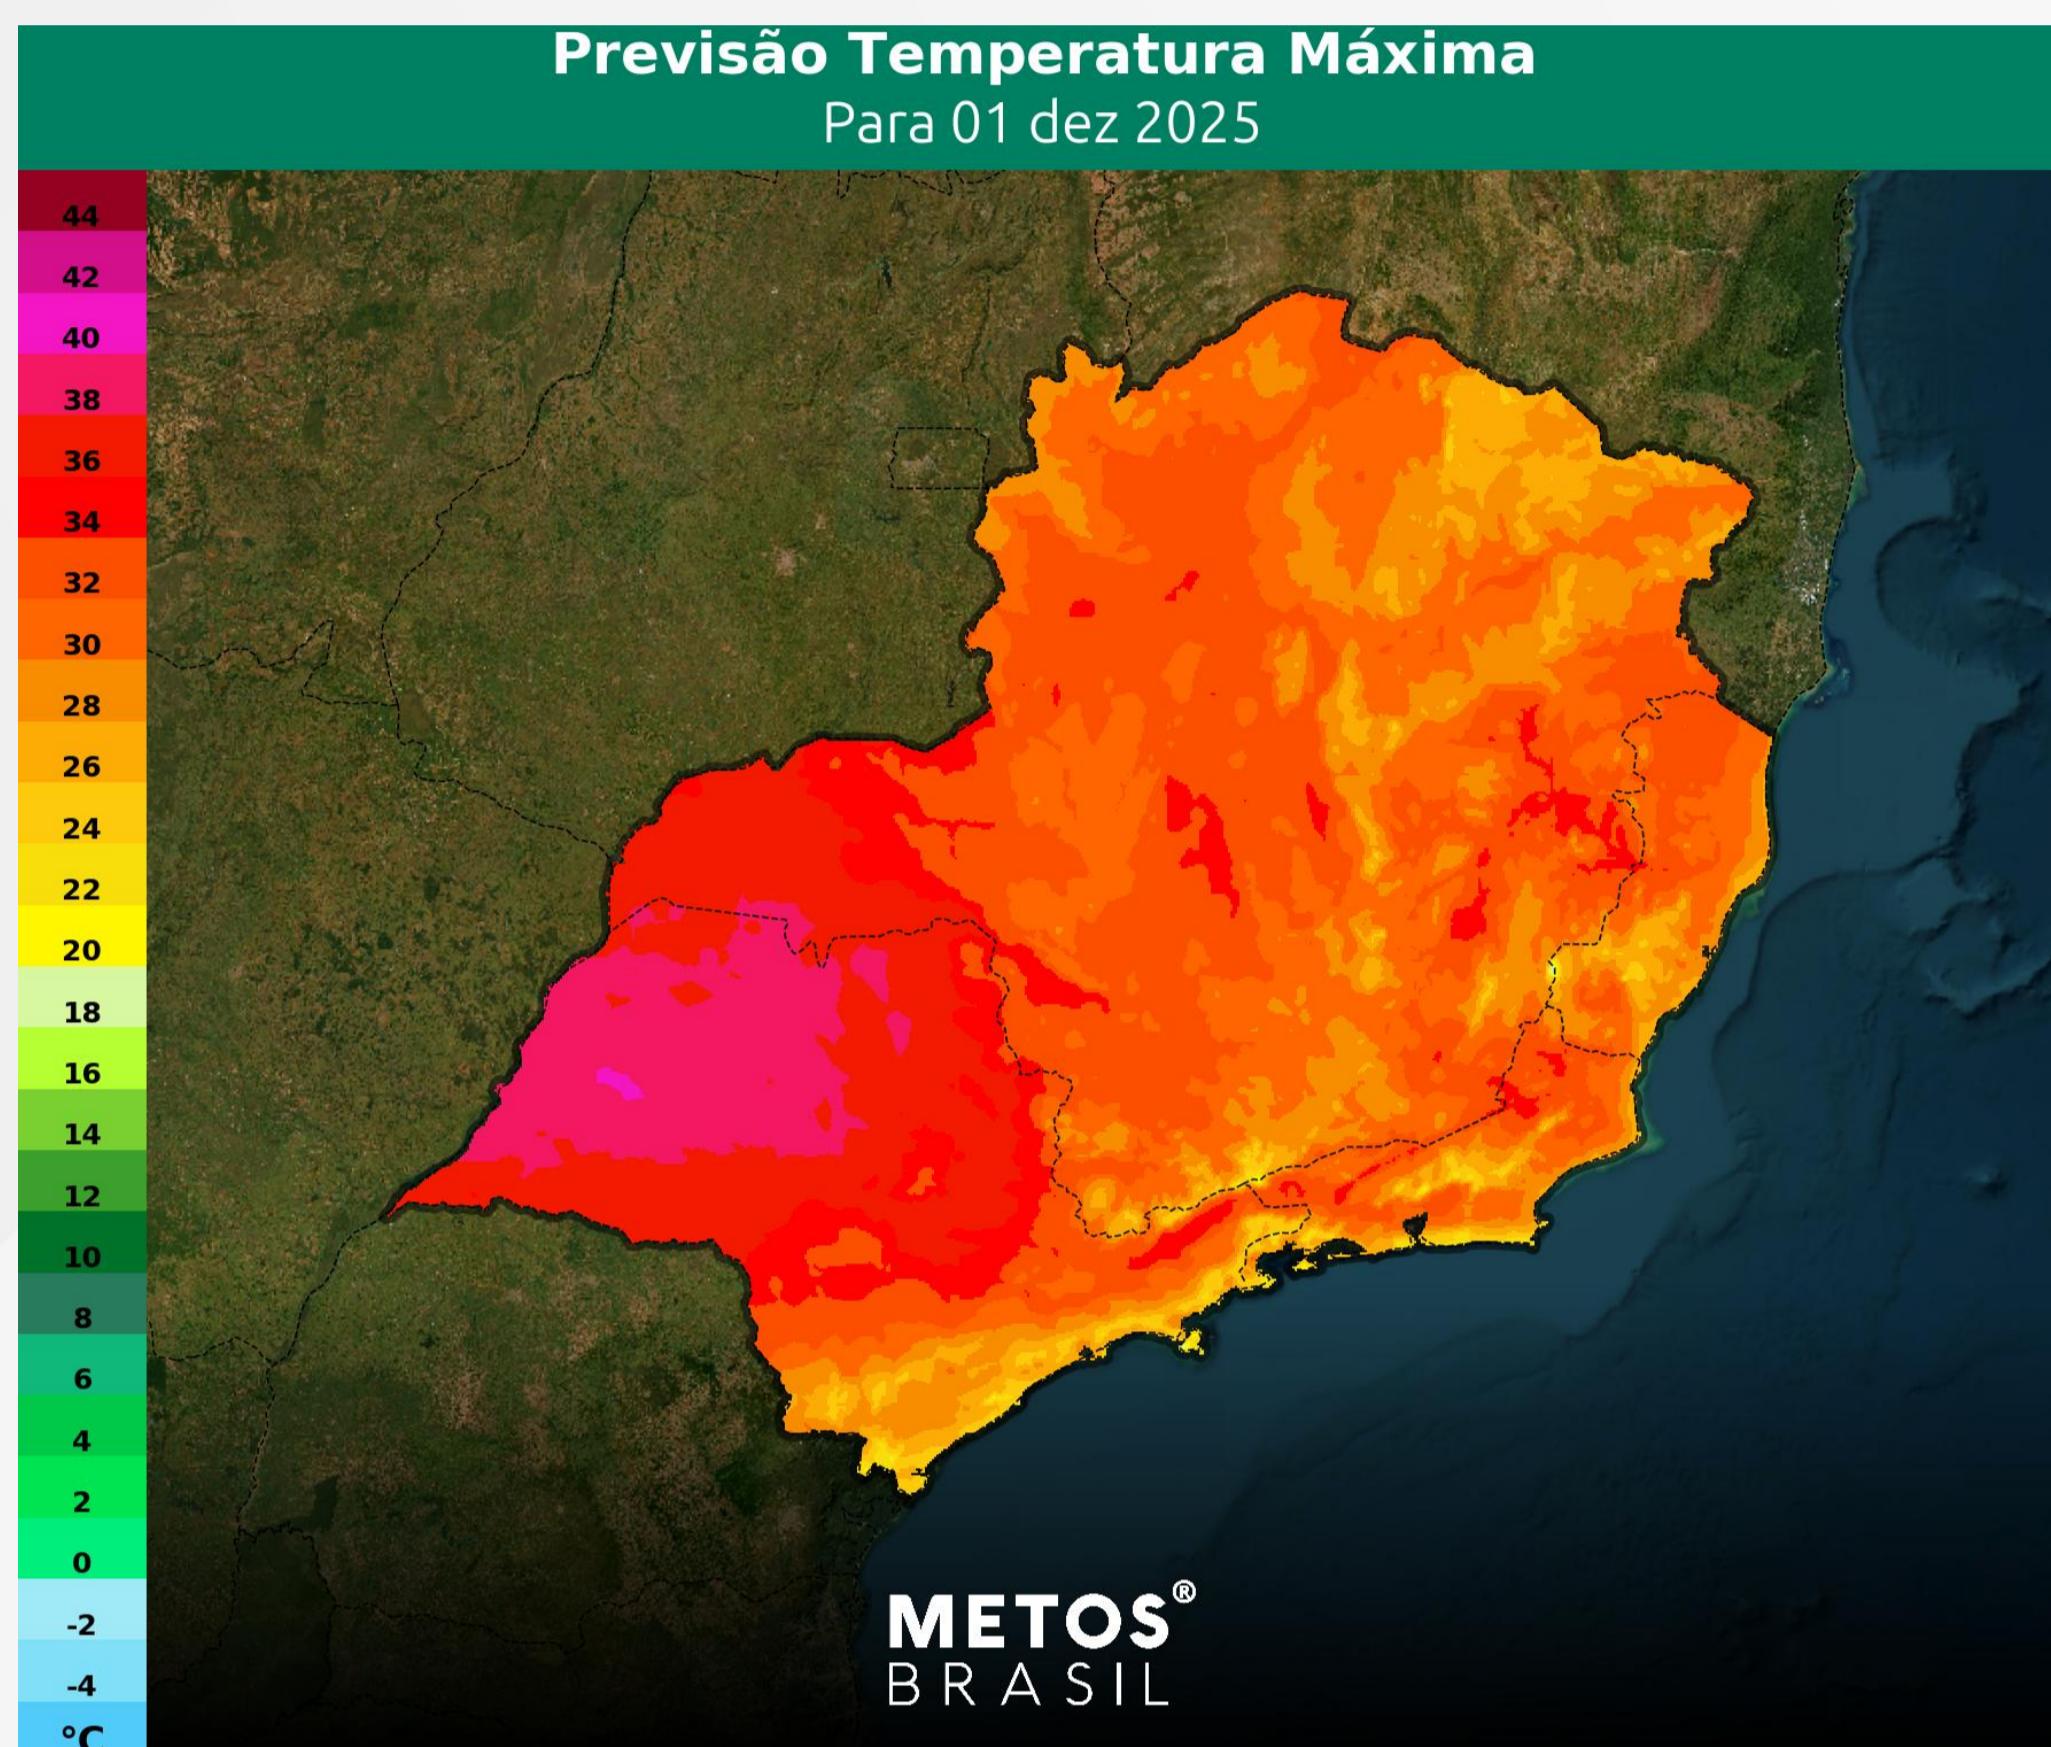

Em relação às temperaturas, a semana começa com calor intenso no interior de São Paulo, mas a chegada da frente fria e o aumento da nebulosidade favorecerão a redução das temperaturas máximas nos dias de chuva. Apesar dessa queda, não há previsão de frio que possa prejudicar as lavouras. O cenário será favorável ao campo, com a umidade do solo tendendo a se recuperar em áreas produtoras de grãos e cana-de-açúcar, apoiando o avanço das atividades agrícolas neste início de dezembro.
